Alleged sex assault eludes lens

Two 15-year-olds were apprehended and charged in relation to the incident • Victim was sleeping in the station after drinking with friends

Security cameras recorded events surrounding an alleged sexual assault inside an LRT station Sunday morning, but did not provide clear evidence for those monitoring the feed, officials said yesterday.

Two teens were taken into custody after an alleged sexual assault and robbery at the Heritage LRT station early Sunday.

Because the incident involving a 19-year-old female took place behind ticketvending machines at the station, the event wasn't reported to peace officers on patrol, said Calgary Transit representative Brian Whitelaw.

"It would have been difficult to easily have seen people when you consider there are literally hundreds of cameras on this system," he said.

Calgary Transit is currently in the midst of a $6-million upgrade to its CCTV monitoring system, and Whitelaw said the organization will continue to look into new technology in the future to help prevent Sunday's events from recurring.

New monitoring system for oilsands

Alberta's environment minister says he's turning to a group of independent experts to tell him how to improve the way the province monitors the oilsands.

The day before a federal panel was expected to release its opinion of the job Alberta's doing, Rob Renner announced he'll appoint a panel to provide a plan on how to set up, op-

Trumping Ottawa

Renner's hastily called news conference late yesterday afternoon came less than 24 hours before his federal counterpart John Baird was to release the as-erate and govern a "worldclass environmental monitoring, evaluation and sessment and recommendations of Ottawa's Oilsands Advisory Panel.

That panel was convened to review Alberta's Regional Aquatic Monitoring System, which has been heavily criticized by scientists for several years.

reporting system."

But what form that system will take is still at least six months away.

Renner said yesterday that the panel will be named next month. It will include representatives from a broad range of professions including scientists, academics, health professionals and economists.

"It must be governed appropriately. Building a scientifically defendable system requires third party review, validation and involvement and most importantly it must be credible. It's what Albertans expect and it's what we intend to deliver," said Renner.

Last week a panel of Canada's top scientists reported that Alberta must improve the way it approves and monitors the oilsands.

Edmonton police probe child slayings

▶ A 31-year-old man is in custody following treatment for injuries
▶ Identities won't be released until autopsies on two children complete

Edmonton homicide detectives are still trying to piece together the events surrounding the killing of two children at a northeast townhouse Sunday.

Police received a call for a welfare check at a residence just before midnight, when they discovered the youngsters.

Children and Youth Services Minister Yvonne Fritz confirmed the family had been "involved" with her staff, but that the children resided with their mother and not in foster

"We provided support and services to the family based on what their needs were. The children were residing with their mother.

"Any instance of family violence is a tragic situation," said Fritz.

Meanwhile, NDP Children and Youth Services' critic Rachel Notley is calling for an investigation — nearly two years after first calling for a public inquiry into child protective services.

"I feel terribly for the relatives and friends of these two young children," Notley said in a release. "The government owes them a detailed public investigation into what went wrong here so we can stop such things from happening again."

Another neighbour, Mark Sanders, who received a knock on his door from police around 1:30 a.m., said he didn't know the people who lived in the home and that they hadn't been living there for very long.

"It's a small neighbourhood but not too many of us know each other by name — just by sight," he said.

Pension debate fails to draw young adults

Framework approved for Pooled Registered Pension Plan Alberta finance minister in favour of move

As the framework for a private-sector pension alternative was approved for Canadians yesterday, some young adults in Calgary said they have been staying out of the debate.

This is despite the fact that those who work, like 21-year-old Andrew Laidlow, routinely pay into the Canada Pension Plan. Over the past year, Laidlow has paid more than $300 into the CPP through his parttime job, but said he's never really questioned what the money was being put towards.

"It's never really a topic casual conversation,' said Laidlow, who also attends school at Mount Royal University.

"It might be the fact that it is just pilfered off the cheque. You don't really see

Pope blames society for abuse of kids

○ Catholic leader says sex scandals humiliated the church ○ Calls for more help for victims

Pope Benedict XVI told Vatican officials yesterday that they must reflect on the church's culpability in its child sex-abuse scandal, but he also blamed a secular society in which he said the mistreatment of children was frighteningly common.

In his traditional, end-ofthe-year speech to Vatican cardinals and bishops, Benedict said revelations of abuse in 2010 reached "an unimaginable dimension" that required the church to accept the "humiliation" as a call for renewal.

"We must ask ourselves

Benedict also said, however, that the scandal must be seen in a broader social context, in which child pornography is seemingly considered normal by society and sexual tourism is on the rise.

"The psychological destruction of children is a terrifying sign of the times," Benedict said.

COCAINE SMUGGLING

Flight attendant iailed

An Air Canada flight attendant who was found guilty of smuggling cocaine into Britain has been sentenced to eight years in prison.

British media reports say Mandeen Shahi, 27. was accused of smuggling four kilograms of cocaine in her luggage during a flight from Toronto to London.

After landing at Heathrow Airport in March 2010, the woman from Mississauga, Ont., delivered the cocaine to a pair of drug dealers, who were under police surveillance.

Shahi was arrested five months later on her return to Britain, after police identified her using security camera footage.

Three other men involved in the smuggling were also arrested and have been sentenced to a total of 24 years. The reports say Shahi told police she had no idea there was cocaine in her luggage, but a jury at Southwark Crown Court found her guilty of possession of drugs with intent to supply.

The judge said the group targeted Air Canada because of a perceived lack of security checks and the belief it operates in a country not known for drug smuggling.

Provinces agree on pooled pensions

▶ But finance ministers want Canada Pension Plan improvements ▶ CPP talks on hold for now: Flaherty

Federal Finance Minister Jim Flaherty says the provinces have agreed on a framework for pooled pensions, but talks on whether to revamp the Canada Pension Plan will have to continue on another day.

Flaherty had gone into a meeting of his provincial and territorial counterparts yesterday floating an idea for a new private-sector plan with pooled resources from small firms, employees and the self-employed.

Afterwards, Flaherty said finance officials will talk with employees, employers and financial institutions in the next month to make sure the plan meets their needs.

Finance ministers from six provinces had said they were not necessarily opposed to the pooled-pension idea, but they also said CPP improvements were necessary to ensure Canadians have adequate income in their retirement.

Flaherty said that discussion will continue around the middle of next year. Ontario Finance Minister Dwight Duncan said he was glad the CPP discussion would be on the table at the next finance ministers meeting in June.

"What we've always said is we are prepared federally to work on improvements to the Canada Pension Plan as part of our review process, but (we're) not implementing anything right now," Flaherty had said before going into the meeting in Kananaskis, Alta.

Alberta Finance Minister Ted Morton threw cold water on the notion that CPP changes would get much support from his province.

"It's hard to imagine much interest in pursuing that in Alberta," he said as he left the meeting. The province was one of three that had supported Flaherty's private-sector plan from the beginning.

Gil McGowan, president of the Alberta Federation of Labour, said he doesn't buy the idea that improvements to the CPP have to wait until the economy improves.

"This argument that a recession is no time to make major policy change is a red herring because there are all sorts of ways to get around those concerns," he said.

Rise in food costs hit poor hardest: Study

▶ Poor forced to make unhealthy comprimises, report says
▶ Steep dairy costs a Canadian issue: Author

The price of staple foods has been rising faster than inflation, hitting the poor harder than others and forcing them to make unhealthy compromises, a new study says.

The cost of basics for a low-income household's dinner — baked goods, dairy and meat — has been outpacing the consumer price index, according to the Institute for Competitiveness and Prosperity, a Toronto-based think-tank.

much of those products as wealthier people, the study found. That's mainly because stores in poor neighbourhoods don't carry much fresh produce, the report says.

Higher prices for meat and baked goods are linked to a surge in global commodities tied to 2008's global financial crisis. But higher dairy prices are a made-in-Canada phenomenon linked to supply management, the authors argue.

Soldiers mark last Christmas in Kandahar

Canadians add some festive cheer to war-torn Afghanistan • Gifts from home raise spirits

The weather outside is always frightful, and when you're under fire, it's never delightful.

And what Canadian soldiers wouldn't give to let it snow, even just a little to brighten the drab, winter-scorched farmland of western Panjwaii.

Peace on Earth and good will to all men seems far away this season, almost as distant as it was when troops celebrated their first Christmas amid the ruins of this stark land almost seven years ago.

Dec. 25 is expected to come and go with the grind of army orders and routine of patrols along bomb-sewn laneways in mud-moulded villages.

There is some holiday cheer; decorations here and there around Kandahar Airfield.

Soldiers have started to receive packages, little creature comforts such as favourite blankets, gloves and other nicknacks, all dutifully mailed by relatives.

Belarus strongman keeps grip on power

Alexander Lukashenko, the autocratic president of Belarus, appeared to have quashed any immediate threat to his continuing rule, declaring yesterday that he was the overwhelming winner of a presidential election that ended with a violent crackdown on reformists hoping for change.

No demonstrations occurred in the capital, Minsk, last night, an indication that things were returning to normal in Belarus, one of the most authoritarian of the former Soviet states and which the U.S. once labelled Europe's last dictatorship.

Lukashenko exercises overwhelming control over politics, industry and media in this nation of 10 million bordering Poland and the Baltic nations. The repression has been an embarrassment to the European Union, which offered billions in aid to Belarus if the elections were judged to be free and fair.

Hopes for improved democratic reforms had already dissipated as international observers and Western governments accused Lukashenko of using fraudulent counting and violence against protesters to keep himself in power.

Two Koreas remain on edge

South Korean President Lee Myung-bak gathered his national security leaders for strategic talks early today as troops braced for possible North Korean retaliation a day after conducting artillery drills on an island the North bombed last month.

North Korea has so far backed off threats to strike the South again for conducting live-fire military drills on Yeonpyeong Island. Similar drills last month triggered a North Korean artillery attack that killed four South Koreans, including two civilians.

Still, South Korea's military said it was prepared for any unexpected North Korean provocation.

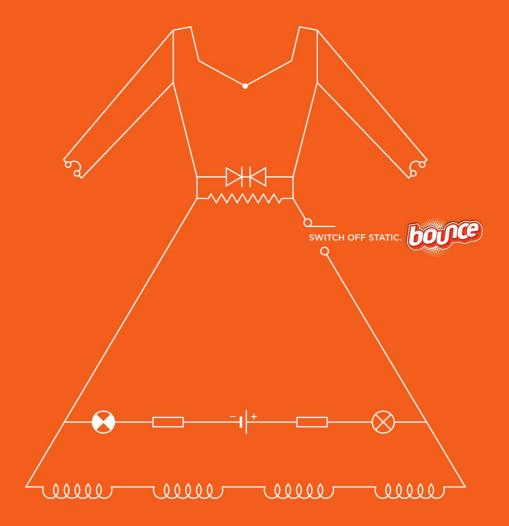

"We will mobilize reconnaissance and surveillance assets of South Korea and the U.S. combined force and intensively monitor North Korea's military activities," Defence Minister Kim Kwanjin told lawmakers before leaving for the security meeting.

The North's apparent conciliatory gestures came after South Korea launched fighter jets, evacuated hundreds of residents near its tense land border with the North and sent residents of islands near disputed waters into underground bunkers in case Pyongyang followed through on a vow to attack over the drills.

"We have to show North Korea that we are committed to respond to any kind of provocation," a senior South Korean government official said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

China censors Internet content it deems politically sensitive and blocks many social networking sites, including Facebook

Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg toured the offices of China's top search engine yesterday during a visit that has sparked speculation the social networking magnate is looking for business opportunities in the world's largest Internet market.

Facebook is blocked on the mainland, but Zuckerberg has expressed a business interest in China and has studied Mandarin.

Photos of Zuckerberg's visit to Baidu Inc. were quickly posted online.

Kaiser Kuo, Baidu's director of international communications, told The Associated Press that Zuckerberg had lunch with Baidu CEO Robin Li. He said he didn't know what they talked about but added that the two had met before.

Zuckerberg, who cofounded Facebook, is travelling with his girlfriend, Priscilla Chan, and no apparent entourage.

"Mark has had a long personal interest in China." Kuo said.

But Zuckerberg has also hinted that he's interested in more than that, saying during a speaking engagement in October, "How can you connect the whole world if you leave ► Mark Zuckerberg out 1.6-billion people?"

Kuo tried to tamp down such speculation, though, posting on his Twitter account: "C'mon people. Robin and Mark have known each other for a while. Mark's interest in China is well known. Keep the speculation in check."

Not many in China are familiar with Facebook, but Zuckerberg is known for being Time magazine's 2010 Person of the Year, according to Kuo.

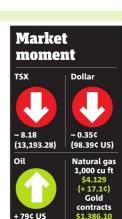

Aside from a visit yesterday morning to a Tibetan temple in Beijing, the rest of Zuckerberg's schedule in China is not known.

ENCYCLOPEDIA OF SIGNATURE DRINKS

'Tis the season to get a bit festive, and if your family is anything like mine, "festive" means, well ...

hat can I say; we all get a little too merry around the holidays. With so many libations to overindulge in, it's good to remind yourself what your cocktail of choice says about your personality. After all, you are what you drink.

Cosmopolitan: You think your drink is super cute and it totally matches your shoes and, oh my God, you're such a Carrie, no wait — you're totally a Samantha.

Red Bull and vodka: You are three months away from a full-blown cocaine addiction — or a heart attack

Screwdriver: This is your first time at a bar and you saw someone on TV order this drink once.

Whisky: You're sporting a non-ironic moustache and own a diverse collection of sweater vests.

Shots: The drink of choice of the young, single and desperate to get laid.

Malt liquor: You drive a pickup truck and have no taste buds.

Martini: You're a relatively experienced drinker that doesn't mind sitting alone at the bar because your Bluetooth headset makes you feel important. On the other hand, you might be James Bond.

Crisis spawns top word

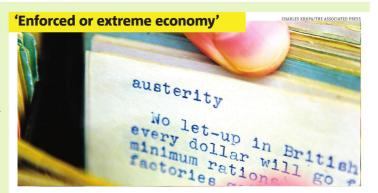

Worth mentioning

As Greece faced a debt crisis, the government passed a series of strict austerity measures, including tax hikes and public-sector pay cuts.

The move provoked a rush to online dictionaries from those searching for a definition.

Austerity, the 14th-century noun defined as "the quality or state of being austere" and "enforced or extreme economy," set off enough searches that Merriam-Webster named it as its Word Of The Year for 2010, the dictionary's editors announced yesterday.

day. John Morse, president and publisher of the Springfield, Mass.-based dictionary, said "austerity" saw more than 250,000 searches on the dictionary's free online tool and came with more coverage of the debt crisis.

Runners-up announced yesterday included "pragmatic," "moratorium," "socialism," and "bigot" — the last word resulted from public uses by former British prime minister Gordon Brown, former CNN host Rick Sanchez and former NPR senior analyst Juan Williams.

Also making the top-10 list was the word "doppel-ganger," while others on this year's list included "shellacking," "ebullient," "dissident," and "furtive."

Metro Minute with zoo Christmas

Today is your last chance to take in the Calgary Zoo's 12 days of Christmas celebration. For the past 11 days, zookeepers have been giving gifts of "festive enrichment" to various animals around the park in tune with the famous Christmas song. Some of the recipients of these gifts have included "six hogs adigging," "loud gibbons calling" and "a hippo in a cool pool."

The celebration will conclude at 11:30 a.m. to-day with "snow monkeys playing" at the Japanese macaque exhibit in the Eurasia area. The celebration is open to visitors as part of the general admission fee. For more information, visit calgaryzoo.ab.ca.

Scene in brief

What Betty White did in 2010 doesn't usually happen. An 88-year-old actress with more than six decades in Hollywood suddenly became the object of adulation of the masses, which campaigned for her to host Saturday Night Live, boosting the show's ratings and helping her set ratings records for her own show.

After a year remarkable for a star of any age, White has been voted the Entertainer of the Year by members of The Associated Press. "It's ridiculous," White says of the honour, in an interview. "They haven't caught on to me, and I hope they never do."

There were 102 ballots submitted from U.S. news organizations that make up the AP's membership. Voters were asked to cast their ballots for who had the most influence on the entertainment world and culture in 2010. Previous winners include Taylor Swift, Tina Fey and Stephen Colbert.

Teen star Hailee Steinfeld shows new 'Grit' in debut role with Coens, Bridges, Damon. Learn how to scan on page 3.

Coens on True Grit: 'It's not a western'

Operation Description Joel and Ethan Coen subvert expectations again with their latest Operation But the directorial duo insist the western isn't like most westerns Operation How could it be, coming from them?

In discussing their new film, True Grit, Joel and Ethan Coen are clear about one thing: They have zero interest in talking about the 1969 John Wayne film that was also based on Charles Portis' novel, about a tough 14-year-old girl who enlists a grizzled U.S. marshal and a Texas ranger to track down her father's killer.

"I don't think any of us

"I don't think any of us thought about much of anything in this with reference to the first movie," Ethan says. "We had seen the movie when it came out, but we were kids then."

Instead, the brothers looked to Portis' 1968 book, which focused more on young Mattie Ross (played by newcomer Hailee Steinfeld) than the first film adaptation.

And while the Coen brothers' eclectic career has covered a slew of genres, they've never done a traditional western before — and they'd argue that they still haven't.

"I don't think we thought about it as a genre movie so much," Ethan says. "It is a western inarguably — you know, there are guys with six-guns on horses. But it's not a western in that sense, and really we were thinking about the story, we were thinking about the novel more than doing a western, per se."

To find the right teenager to go toe-to-toe with Jeff

► Shania Twain

Bridges' marshal and Matt Damon's ranger, they set out on a nationwide search — not that they really needed to.

"If we'd only known. Hailee's from Thousand Oaks," Ethan says with a laugh. "We looked all over the country. There were two casting people that spent basically 18 months going everywhere, just everywhere, seeing thousands of girls — and they could have stayed in L.A."

According to the Coens, what made Steinfeld stand out was her ability to wrap her mouth around the script's peculiar dialogue.

"Ninety-nine-point-nine percent of the hundreds or thousands of girls who read for this part washed out at the level of not being able to do the language, and that was something which was never an issue with Hailee," Joel says. "Right from the begin-

"Right from the beginning it was clear that she was completely comfortable with the language."
Though a distinct dia-

Though a distinct dialogue style might seem like a hallmark of the Coen brothers, much of the flowery lines of True Grit actually came from the source material.

"The kind of formality of it and the floweriness of it is just from the book," says Ethan. "That was the first thing Jeff mentioned, noticed and liked — the kind of foreign-sounding nature of the dialogue and the lack of contractions. We just lifted it from the book."

The Coen brothers, on location

There was one area where the Coen brothers didn't stay faithful to Charles Portis' novel. While the action in True Grit takes place in Arkansas and Oklahoma, the brothers filmed in New Mexico — partly for the weather and partly because of audience expectations, they admit.

"That's one thing that's not faithful to the novel," Ethan says. "I mean, the landscape is a total cheat. But you know, we kind of thought people will think it's a western, and some things you just can't mess with. People want that."

Joel agrees: "The whole pictorial idea of the movie would have been much different in a place like Arkansas," he says

And there was the weather to consider. "We knew we wanted to have snow in the movie," Joel says says.

"The trick was snow but not too much snow, and we weren't sure we were reliably going to get any snow at that time of year in Arkansas," Joel says.

Women are not going for "free" mammograms as often as they should – and could - be.

A new study in the U.S. has found only 50 to 60 per cent of women who should be going for regular mammography tests actually do.

And cost certainly is not the issue: All of the 1.5 million women in the study had health insurance, and here in Canada, it's covered.

FOR THE LOVE OF BIKES

Names: Shannon, 25, and Andy, 38

Current city: Toronto

Together since: 2009

Their story:

"Andy and I (Shannon) met when I started a new job at a medical office he was the Purolator guy...

One day, Andy came into the office with a package I was expecting — I had ordered something from a motorcycle shop.

from a motorcycle shop.
Being a rider himself, he recognized the name of the store and was very curious about the contents.
Having discovered our joint passion for motorcycles, our conversations became more frequent.

Andy would even stop into the office empty-handed just for a quick chat. About two years later, we had our first date — on a motorcycle, of course! We went for a beautiful summer ride and rode by the waterfront in Port Perry, Ont.

It was there—36 minutes into our first date — that I knew he was "the one". I asked him to marry me. He said yes and kept me waiting (im)patiently for him to surprise me with a proper proposal. Andy finally proposed in January 2010, at the same place in Port Perry where I had asked him to marry me.

After some drama, a bit of stress and a wedding venue cancellation, we finally tied the knot in September 2010 in Toronto."

I'm an adventurous foodie, but my partner's taste buds are limited to boiled chicken and root veggies, and she refuses to experiment. I'm worried my flavour centres are going to turn as bland as the food on her plate. What can I do?

Derek savs...

She sounds boring. I feel for you.

But in the event that you are actually in love and in this for the long haul, try finding restaurants where you can order an interesting item from the menu, while she eats a bowl buttered pasta or a piece of bread.

Once in a while, sneak away for a dinner safari with like-minded friends. If you teach her how to cook, she might be willing to experiment and expand her palate. Good luck.

Angela says ...

We have a friend who doesn't have an adventurous wish bone in him.

When his wife craves sushi, he tags along, and drinks a beer while she noshes on her tuna rolls. Then they go get him a burger and fries. Personally, I could never survive that kind of relationship—trying new foods is fun to do together — but hey, if it works for you then who am I to judge?

This is one of those situations where you will both need to learn how to compromise.

Take turns giving in to each other's food choices. I suspect after a while, she'll come around. Because who can resist a tasty chicken tikka masala?

INVEST IN OTHERS, REAP THE BENEFITS

Charitable giving has become an essential piece of a financial plan. Studies have shown that philanthropy is one of the top three characteristics that wealthy people share (the other two are spending wisely and investing for the future). On average, self-made millionaires give away 10 per cent of their earnings.

Giving won't set you back financially. Research shows there's a Return On Investment (ROI) when you invest in your community. Rather than getting a dollar return, which is typical of a financial investment, you benefit through expanded networks.

creased sales, leadership opportunities, promotions, marketing, job offers, publicity, and much more.

Additionally, Revenue Canada supports giving and will provide an attractive tax credit.

It can be hard to find extra dollars to give. It's hard enough trying to save 10 per cent into your RRSP and pay off debt.

But, giving doesn't just happen. You have to plan to make it happen.

Philanthropy helps to build safe, healthy, growing communities, and giving goes beyond donating money. Charities require volunteers to deliver programs and fundraise and they need strategic direction from board and committee members.

mittee members.
Get involved! First, do some soul searching to determine the causes that are meaningful to you. Has your family been impacted by a particular illness? Do you love the arts? Do children's sports camps make your heart melt?

Next, research the organizations you're passionate about. If you're stumped, visit sites like canadahelps.org, imaginecanada.ca or your local volunteer and community foundations. Try to pick one or two organizations to make your charity of choice.

Find out what the organization needs (usually money and volunteers) and how you can give.

Get to know them by volunteering your time and skills. If you're a web designer, spice up their website. If you're a banker, run a financial training program.

When you're ready, contribute financially to your charity of choice. From a budgeting perspective, it's helpful to contribute regularly on payday. Then, aim to grow your giving annually; e.g. $50 to $75 per month. There are two approaches to donations: either give small amounts to many charities – $20 here, $50 there, or, give to fewer charities, but in greater amounts – $1,000 to one or two organizations. More dollars to fewer organizations can have a greater impact.

Check whether your employer or professional association will match your donation or give you time off for volunteering.

Whatever your motivation is for giving, when you contribute your time, talent and money it demonstrates leadership, and people pay attention

The holiday season is a tough time for many Canadians. The majority of us (60 per cent) live pay cheque to pay cheque as we shoulder heavier debt loads. Just meeting the minimum of holiday expectations stretches some of us to the brink.

My prescription for such woes is to focus on feeding your soul. It doesn't involve much time or money but I guarantee it will help shed your financial woes and give you a dose of feel good at the same time.

Call up a family member or friend you haven't spoken to for ages.

I grew up in a time when calling long distance was either an occasion or meant bad news. At Christmas we'd huddle around the phone for a few quick words with relatives across the continent. Now long distance rates are so cheap there's no excuse not to call. And if it is long overdue you'll spread considerable joy.

Visit a shut in

It's a lonely time of year for many seniors in retirement facilities and nursing homes. Those who don't see well enough to read would welcome hearing you read aloud a favourite book. Others might enjoy a drive to see Christmas lights.

Take part

In every city, town and village in the country there are pageants, parades, ceremonies and caroling. Most of them are free. Get out and enjoy yourself!

The tax ins and outs of the at-home office

Did you know that the Income Tax Act limits the circumstances under which a self-employed individual can deduct the costs related to a workspace in the home? They are confined to situations where the space is used ex-clusively to earn income from a business and on a regular and continuous basis for meeting clients, customers or patients; or if it is the individual's principal place of business.

This claim may be based on the proportionate space within the home that is used as a workplace. Eligible expenses include rent, mortgage interest, realty taxes, insurance, utilities and maintenance. It is generally not advisable to claim capital-cost allowance (CCA) on a portion of the home because that portion would then not qualify for the principal residence exemption when it is ultimately sold.

Similarly, claiming 50 per cent or more business use of the home or making major structural alterations to adapt it to business use will trigger a "change in use," resulting in loss of the principal residence exemption.

The amount a taxpayer can claim is limited to his or her business income before deductions for home workspace. Any unused amount may then be carried forward and claimed in the subsequent year against related business income. To the extent that unused amounts cannot be claimed in the following year, they can be carried forward indefinitely to be claimed at the first available opportunity.

B&B tax bonus

- A bed-and-breakfast enterprise may also qualify as workspace in the home, provided the guest rooms are located inside the owner's home and not in a separate dwelling. Calculate the percentage of space that is designated exclusively for guests, as well for joint-use of owner and guests, in order to determine a realistic apportionment of expenses that can be deducted for business purposes.
- Don't forget to include business storage space in the basement and elsewhere, when determining the proportion of your home used for commercial purnoses.

Favre's return ends early after head injury Brett Favre's emotional and surprising return to the field ended early. Favre shrugged off a sprained right shoulder to start the game last night, receiving a thunderous ovation from the crowd when he was introduced before the game.

But Minnesota's 41-year-old quarterback sustained a head injury in the second quarter after being taken down by Bears defensive end Corey Wootton, and the team said he would not return. The Bears won 40-14.

than a month but had two in the third period yesterday.

Minnesota led 1-0 early before Olli Jokinen tied it for Calgary in the second. The Wild were lucky to have given up a single goal — the Flames outshot Minnesota 15-3 in the period, which ended with the crowd booing the home team as it failed to control the puck on its first power play of the game.

But on their second attempt with the man advantage, the Wild regained the lead on Havlat's eighth goal of the season. With a clear cut to the net, Havlat picked up a loose puck in the corner and backhanded it over Miikka Kiprusoff's shoulder to make it 2-1.

Minnesota padded its lead nearly four minutes later when Madden's shot from along the goal line hit off Kiprusoff's stick into the net. Clutterbuck added an empty-netter with 45 seconds to play.

Kiprusoff, who has 24 career victories against the Wild, made 19 saves for Calgary.

Brodziak scored his second goal in three games to put Minnesota up 1-0 at 9:18 of the first. After grabbing a rebound off the newly recalled Marco Scandella's shot from the left circle, Brodziak whipped it around Kiprusoff to give the Wild an early lead.

The Flames tied it early in the second when Jokinen beat Backstrom's glove off a pretty feed from Jarome Iginla.

Greinke likes team's swagger

• 'Realistically, we're done making major moves,' says Brewers GM Melvin

Zack Greinke loves the attitude of the Milwaukee Brewers and their willingness to try to reach the post-season immediately.

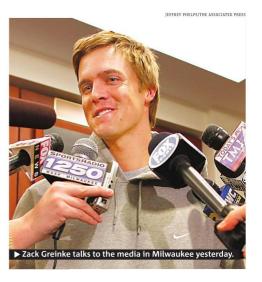

"The main reason I wanted to get out, I mean, preferred to get out of Kansas City, is I wanted to be on a team that was trying to win this year, because, as a pitcher, you don't really know how long your career is going to be," Greinke said yesterday, a day after he was acquired from the Royals in a six-player trade.

After winning the AL Cy

Young Award with a 16-8 record and 2.16 ERA in 2009, the 27-year-old right-hander slumped to 10-14 with a 4.17 ERA last season.

"Just really wanted to be in a place where they were playing to win games right away," he said. The Brewers also acquired Shaun Marcum to join a rotation that also includes holdover Yovani Gallardo. The new players join a core that includes all-stars Prince Fielder, Ryan Braun and Corey Hart.

Banned coach gets reinstated

A coach with Ontario's Peterborough Minor Hockey Association has been reinstated after controversy over a racial slur.

Greg Walsh pulled his team off the ice at a minor league game in Peterborough last month after an opposing player uttered a racial slur at one of his players.

Walsh was suspended by the Ontario Minor Hockey Association until next April for breaking a rule.

Walsh received word of his reinstatement yesterday morning and it is effective immediately.

He was told by the association's executive director in an email that the suspension was overturned.

"There was no explanation given," Walsh told radio station CKRU.

Juniors lose gear in transit

Sweden, Germany and Norway made it to North America for their warmup games ahead of the world junior hockey championship — but some of their equipment did not.

The three teams were left scrambling yesterday as some of their bags were caught up in the travel chaos plaguing Europe after days of severe winter weather.

The Swedes and Germans both went shopping for replacement equipment so they could practise ahead of their exhibition games this week, while the Norwegians decided to wait for their baes to arrive, according to officials from Hockey Canada and USA Hockey.

Either way, all three teams are expected to be ready for exhibition games this week.

Today, Sweden plays Canada in Toronto while Norway takes on Slovakia in Jamestown, N.Y. The Germans play the Czech Republic tomorrow in Rochester, N.Y.

The Swedes were missing 10 bags when they arrived in Toronto, but Hockey Canada stepped in to help, setting up an account for its visitors at a local store.

Scott Salmond, Hockey Canada's senior director of national teams, said the Swedes planned to practise yesterday once they had loaded up on new gear and that tonight's game was expected to proceed as scheduled.

Carter starting over in Phoenix

Vince Carter went home to revitalize his career. A little over a year later, he's getting another shot at it, this time with Steve Nash and the up-tempo Phoenix

Part of a six-player deal with his hometown Orlando Magic completed on Sunday, Carter is hoping to show there's still some life in those once-springy legs and that he, centre Marcin Gortat and swingman Mickael Pietrus can give the Suns a much-needed defensive hoost

"I look around these young guys and I've been around for a while, and I just want to bring Vince Carter, my game, who I am, my style of play, what I've done in the past years," Carter said yesterday after being introduced with his new teammates. "It's a wide-open offence where you can make things happen."

Carter, 33, was once considered the "air apparent" to Michael Jordan, a former North Carolina standout who could soar through the air just like the other Tar Heels' flying star. A seventime all-star in 12 NBA sea sons, including seven as the face of the Toronto Raptors, Carter wasn't quite as prolific as he once was in his final years in New Jersey and ended up traded to Orlando before the 2009-10 season. Teaming up with Dwight Teaming up with Dwight Howard didn't go quite as anticipated. Carter had the worst season of his career in Orlando last year, averaging 16.6 points and 3.9 rebounds, and had a dismal performance in the Eastern Conference finals, losing playing time to backup J.J. Redick.

Now he gets a chance to work with Victoria superstar Nash, still one of the NBA's most prolific set-up men, and in an offence built around running and three-pointers. Phoenix's system worked well for Jason Richardson, the Suns' leading scorer before he was included in the six-player deal, and Carter would like think it could do the same for him.

"I feel like you can get better with age, you can learn the ins and outs of the game." Carter said

"Maybe you lose a step, maybe you don't jump as high as you did, but you can be more effective and that's what I've prided myself on, fine-turning my game each and every year."

Defence was always the problem, exacerbated this season with the loss of power forward Amare Stoudemire; through Sunday's games, the Suns led the NBA in scoring, but were also tied with Minnesota for last in scoring defence.

T Aries March 21-April 20 Keep what you know to yourself today and don't be tempted to boast that you have inside information. If your rivals get even a sniff of what you are up to it will weaken your efforts to move up in the world.

¥ Taurus April 21-May 21 You are not thinking straight, so it might be wise to avoid any major decisions. There are some tricky people out there, so play your cards close to vour chest.

II Gemini May 22-June 21 lt seems like everyone wants a piece of you — but there is only so much of you to go around, Look out for Number One Gancer June 22-July 22 Your fears and anxieties seem to be getting a bit out of hand, so you need to remind yourself today of who you are and what it is you want to do with vour life.

Ω Leo July 23-Aug.23 Will you get an apology from someone who did you wrong? It's highly unlikely and you know it, so you might as well put the incident behind you and get on with your life.

M Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 No matter how desperate you may be to move up in the world you must not take foolish risks. Success is a long-term endeavor, so think where you want to be a year or even five years from now. Then go for it.
